

Niko Korpar, MSc is the operations manager at the Slovenian circular economy platform Circular Change, a private, non-profit organisation whose goal is to accelerate the transition from a linear to circular economy in Slovenia. He is also one of the authors and project managers of the national strategy document Roadmap: Towards a Circular Economy in Slovenia. Niko is also a teaching assistant at the DOBA Faculty of Applied Business and Social Studies Maribor where his field of specialization is the management of smart cities. After studying international economics in Ljubljana and Amsterdam, Niko earned his master's degree in Socio-Ecological Economics and Policy at the Vienna University of Economics and Business. Prior to joining Circular Change he worked at the circular economy consultancy Metabolic in Amsterdam and for the Ecological Engineering Institute in Maribor, Slovenia.